Ethnohistory Of The High Plains:

Ethnohistory of the High Plains James H. Gunnerson, 1988 James and Dolores Gunnerson's ethnology of the high plains is a companion volume to the 1987 work by Dr Gunnerson entitled Archaeology of the High Plains. These two documents are part of a joint USDI Bureau of Land Management BLM and Forest Service USDA project to provide an overview of the archaeology and ethnology in an area encompassing eastern Colorado, western Kansas, northeastern New Mexico and parts of Texas and Oklahoma.

Ethnohistory of the High Plains James Gunnerson, 2015-01-03 In broad outline native occupation of the Central High Plains can be summarized as follows. The area west of the eastern foothills of the Rocky Mountains in south central Colorado was dominated throughout the historic period by Utes who joined the Comanche bands after 1706 to make forays onto the plains. The Central High Plains was dominated by Apaches during the 1500s and 1600s with other tribes crossing in or entering the plains only incidentally.

Great Plains Ethnohistory Rani-Henrik Andersson, Logan Sutton, Thierry Veyrié, 2024-12-10 This collection offers state of the field work in Great Plains ethnohistory both contemporary and historical covering the traditional anthropological subfields of ethnography, culture history, archaeology and linguistics.

The Oxford Handbook of North American Archaeology Timothy R. Pauketat, 2012-02-23 The Oxford Handbook of North American Archaeology reviews the continent's first and last foragers, farmers and great pre-Columbian civic and ceremonial centers from Chaco Canyon to Moundville and beyond.

American Encounters Peter C. Mancall, James Hart Merrell, 2000 A collection of articles that describe the relationships and encounters between Native Americans and Europeans throughout American history.

Cartographic Poetry Ted Binnema, François Lanoë, Heinz W. Pyszczyk, 2025-06-16 Cartographic Poetry is the first book length multidisciplinary study of five maps drawn in 1801 and 1802 by several Blackfoot and Gros Ventre people for the Hudson's Bay Company. Representing some of the oldest documents created by Indigenous people on the North American prairies and foothills, these maps preserve invaluable evidence about places on the landscape and about historic Blackfoot views of their territories. The maps were intended as navigational tools, but the landforms and locations on the maps hold significance for the Blackfoot well beyond wayfinding and have for many centuries. Informed by a career long fascination with this priceless archive, the Piikani Nation's placenames project and fieldwork efforts to align Indigenous places and present geography, Ted Binnema, François Lanoë and Heinz W. Pyszczyk study the maps as ethnohistorical sources. Exploring their beauty and utility from historical, linguistic and archaeological perspectives, the authors analyze the maps, their placenames and features, and the tours and trips they may have supported, along with providing present day photographs of many of the maps' landforms. A final section of the book outlines how Indigenous maps contributed significantly to Western geographical knowledge and maps of North America from the 1500s onward. Cartographic Poetry will appeal to anthropologists, archaeologists, geographers, historians, cartographers of the Great Plains and to all readers interested in how Indigenous peoples perceived and navigated their territories in this early period of colonial encounter With a Foreword by Jerry Potts Jr and an Afterword by Dr Eldon Yellowhorn

International Handbook of Historical Archaeology Teresita Majewski,David Gaimster,2009-06-07 In studying the past archaeologists have focused on the material remains of our ancestors Prehistorians generally have only artifacts to study and rely on the diverse material record for their understanding of past societies and their behavior Those involved in studying historically documented cultures not only have extensive material remains but also contemporary texts images and a range of investigative technologies to enable them to build a broader and more reflexive picture of how past societies communities and individuals operated and behaved Increasingly historical archaeology refers not to a particular period place or a method but rather an approach that interrogates the tensions between artifacts and texts irrespective of context In short historical archaeology provides direct evidence for how humans have shaped the world we live in today Historical archaeology is a branch of global archaeology that has grown in the last 40 years from its North American base into an increasingly global community of archaeologists each studying their area of the world in a historical context Where historical archaeology started as part of the study of the post Columbian societies of the United States and Canada it has now expanded to interface with the post medieval archaeologies of Europe and the diverse post imperial experiences of Africa Latin America and Australasia The 36 essays in the International Handbook of Historical Archaeology have been specially commissioned from the leading researchers in their fields creating a wide ranging digest of the increasingly global field of historical archaeology The volume is divided into two sections the first reviewing the key themes issues and approaches of historical archaeology today and the second containing a series of case studies charting the development and current state of historical archaeological practice around the world This key reference work captures the energy and diversity of this global discipline today
