Smith,2019-11-04 Too many interior designers have made the grave mistake of not having a signed pact between them and their clients before the commencement of an interior design project If it is an innocent omission that is a bit pardonable We are so excited about getting the job we forget that this is a business and not a hobby and should therefore be approached as such You must never start an interior design project without a written and signed contract agreement It is important for your business Any professional designer that feels this is not necessary doesn t know the import of his her dismissive decision and because of this attitude many have learned the hard way A simple but well drafted interior design contract agreement will serve you well It doesn t have to come with dozens of unnecessarily long and boring clauses but rather must have the most relevant ones for the interior design profession So which clauses should be stated in clear terms This book Important Clauses to Add to An Interior Design Contract Agreement will show you all you need You will find that each clause is both protective and binding so if there is a misunderstanding or disagreement between you and your client somewhere along the way you can both refer back to the letter of agreement As long as everything is spelt out in clear terms and both parties have signed it you as the designer cannot be held legally responsible      Agreements and Contracts for Interior Design Services American Society of Interior Designers,1994
