Ross,1989-10-24 This account of multiple personality disorder MPD and related dissociative disorders presents the latest findings leading to a new model of MPD and a new therapeutic approach to its treatment The book examines the large cluster of symptoms and dysfunctions associated with MPD focusing on diagnosis clinical features and the relationship of MPD to other diagnoses Data and clinical evidence are presented for a widely accepted but as yet unproven hypothesis that MPD arises as a dissociative strategy for coping with severe childhood trauma usually involving physical or sexual abuse The Osiris Complex Colin A. Ross,1994 Adult patients exhibit core symptoms voices in the head and ongoing blank spells or periods of missing time The voices are the different parts of the personality talking to one another and to the main presenting part of the person who comes for treatment Periods of missing time occur when aspects of the personality take turns being in control of the body and memory barriers are erected between them Patients also experience symptoms such as depression anxiety eating disorders substance abuse sleep disorders sexual dysfunction psychosomatic symptoms and symptoms that mimic schizophrenia MPD patients have experienced the most extreme childhood trauma of any diagnostic group and therefore exhibit the psychobiology and psychopathology of trauma to an extreme degree The good news is that once diagnosed the MPD patient can be brought back
