Today Helsinki is a city of 600 000 people combining the atmosphere of an international metropolis with the coziness of a small town. The city is best seen during its short summers when the sun brings the outdoor bars and cafes to life and even the nights are light. While visiting in winter is more of a challenge, Helsinki is one of few large cities in Europe with a good chance for snow on Christmas. Classical Helsinki's sights can be divided into an eclectic set of churches and a wide variety of museums. For a coastal amble past some of Helsinki's minor and major sights see the itinerary. Helsinki Travel Guide Charles Davis, 2016-02-18. Helsinki is the capital of Finland. Founded in 1550 the Daughter of the Baltic has been the Finnish capital since 1812 when it was rebuilt by the tsars of Russia along the lines of a miniature St Petersburg a role it has played in many a Cold War movie. Today Helsinki pulls off the trick of being something of an international metropolis while still retaining a small town feel. The best time to visit is in summer when Finns peel off their overcoats and flock to outdoor bars and cafes to enjoy the sunshine. Helsinki is among the world's northernmost capitals and the lengthy winter from October all the way up to April is dark and chilly. Winter temperatures average 5°C but the wind chill and humidity makes it feel even colder and the mercury can plunge below 20°C on a particularly cold day. In general snow falls only intermittently and often melts into gray slush. However lake effect snowfalls dropping copious amounts of snow during a few hours and messing up the traffic is not unheard of in the early winter. Since the Helsinki peninsula juts into the sea there is often a cold sea wind and the climate is more maritime than inland with snow and 5°C replaced by slush sleet and 0°C. This is especially apparent in November and December. The spring brings clear skies but the temperature doesn't increase as fast as the sunshine hours even in April you may experience sub zero nights. The summer is often pleasant. Temperatures are usually around 20°C and July and August afternoons often see temperatures above 25°C. Parks burst into green sunbathers dot the city's beaches and restaurants and bars deploy their terraces and patios making the streetscape look more Central European for a couple of months. The city is officially bilingual with an 86% Finnish speaking majority and a visible 6% Swedish speaking minority. Many in the Finnish speaking majority only know the basics of Swedish which they learned in school while some speak it fluently. The majority of Finnish speaking people are much more comfortable with speaking English than Swedish and especially the younger generations usually speak very good English. Although locals will appreciate an effort to say a few words in Finnish they know very well how difficult Finnish is and will readily switch to English many people also like the chance to practice their English. Finnish letters are always pronounced the same way regardless of context unlike e.g. English a in car and hat with letters doubled for long sounds. Word stress is always on the first syllable. This makes it easy to learn how words should be pronounced while actually pronouncing them.
