How To Write A Nutrition Case Study Paper:

The Academic Portfolio Peter Seldin, J. Elizabeth Miller, 2009-04-27 This comprehensive book focuses squarely on academic portfolios which may prove to be the most innovative and promising faculty evaluation and development technique in years. The authors identify key issues, red flag warnings and benchmarks for success, describing the what, why and how of developing academic portfolios. The book includes an extensively tested step by step approach to creating portfolios and lists 21 possible portfolio items covering teaching, research, scholarship and service from which faculty can choose the ones most relevant to them. The thrust of this book is unique. It provides time tested strategies and proven advice for getting started with portfolios. It includes a research based rubric grounded in input from 200 faculty members and department chairs from across disciplines and institutions. It examines specific guiding questions to consider when preparing every subsection of the portfolio. It presents 18 portfolio models from 16 different academic disciplines. Designed for faculty members, department chairs, deans and members of promotion and tenure committees, all of whom are essential partners in developing successful academic portfolio programs, the book will also be useful to graduate students, especially those planning careers as faculty members.

Nutrition sensitive food systems in conflict affected regions: A case study of Afghanistan Babu, Suresh Chandra, Looden, Jamshed, Ajmal, Mehnaz, Rana, Abdul Wajid, Srivastava, Nandita, The food systems approach can contribute to food security and reduced malnutrition levels by identifying key investments and policies throughout the food system including production, processing, marketing and consumption of food. However, in countries facing fragility and conflict, it has proven difficult to implement such an approach and achieve the desired results. This has been the case in Afghanistan where high levels of malnutrition stem in part from an undersupply of nutritious food. Multi sectoral approaches to promote nutrition sensitivity and achieve diet based solutions have also had only limited impact. This paper reports on an analysis of the nutrition sensitivity of food systems in Afghanistan using multi sector consultations and gap analyses to examine two key food and nutrition policies: the National Comprehensive Agriculture Development Priority Program and the Afghanistan Food Security and Nutrition Agenda. It highlights gaps in the policies and identifies investment priorities to make food systems more nutrition sensitive. The results show that instilling nutrition sensitivity into the operation of Afghanistan's food systems can only be accomplished if certain key measures are incorporated into the food system. These include addressing the absence of knowledge in the population regarding healthy diets, the lack of sufficient food for vulnerable populations, weak irrigation systems, capacity constraints at individual and institutional levels, data challenges and weak natural resource management. In addition, the above weaknesses are compounded by the continued violence and conflict induced insecurity, weak government and inadequate investments. Given the role of different sectors in contributing to improved nutrition, appropriate and effective multi stakeholder coordination and collaboration is paramount to such efforts. FAO Food and Nutrition Paper, 2004 Resources in Education, 1995 International Journal of Sport Nutrition, 1994 Journal
