

4 Types of Budgeting Methods

Incremental Budgeting

Incremental budgeting is one of the simplest and most widely used methods. Essentially, it involves taking the previous year's budget and adjusting it slightly—either adding or subtracting a fixed percentage based on projected needs or goals.

Activity-Based Budgeting

Rather than starting from last year's numbers, ABB focuses on specific activities that drive costs. In this method, budgets are built around the cost of performing these key activities, giving a clearer link between expenses and organizational goals.

Zero-Based Budgeting

Zero-Based Budgeting (ZBB) turns the traditional budgeting process upside down. Instead of just tweaking the old budget, ZBB asks you to justify every single expense from scratch for each new period. Essentially, every dollar needs to earn its place in the budget.

Value Proposition Budgeting

Value Proposition Budgeting prioritizes expenditures based on the value they deliver to customers. In this method, budget items are included based on their potential to create customer value, improve satisfaction, or drive long-term loyalty.
