Practice Exam Instructions

This is a practice exam for the Math 110 Proficiency Test. If your initial mathematics placement is MTH 110, this was due to an ACT score in mathematics that was not sufficiently high, or not enough high school mathematics credits. If you have had a great deal of mathematics in high school, such as an FST course (functions-statistics-trigonometry) and had a bad day on the ACT, you are strongly encouraged to take the MTH 110 proficiency test to see if you can test out of MTH 110.

Please pay attention to the following instructions:

- The practice exam is 60 minutes in length – please time yourself as you take the exam.
- You may use a calculator for the practice exam (graphing calculator preferred).
- A legitimate score of 34 or higher on this practice test suggests that you will be able to pass the MTH 110 Proficiency Test. Please visit the Testing Services webpage at www.gvsu.edu/testing for testing dates and information, or you can contact the Advising Resource Center at (616) 331-3588.

Abstract Mathematical Cognition Wolfgang Grodd,Philippe Chassy,2016-08-09 Despite the importance of mathematics in our educational systems little is known about how abstract mathematical thinking emerges Under the uniting thread of mathematical development we hope to connect researchers from various backgrounds to provide an integrated view of abstract mathematical cognition Much progress has been made in the last 20 years on how numeracy is acquired Experimental psychology has brought to light the fact that numerical cognition stems from spatial cognition The findings from neuroimaging and single cell recording experiments converge to show that numerical representations take place in the intraparietal sulcus Further research has demonstrated that supplementary neural networks might be recruited to carry out subtasks for example the retrieval of arithmetic facts is done by the angular gyrus Now that the neural networks in charge of basic mathematical cognition are identified we can move onto the stage where we seek to understand how these basics skills are used to support the acquisition and use of abstract mathematical concepts Teaching Children Mathematics ,2004
